I agree to have my personal information removed from Clipperz Partners' mailing listBiz Appoints Chairman The Challenge of Streamlining Sales in a Complex Industry The pipeline management system has been described as “the most significant problem facing the water industry today”. It’s also a technology that can be “very cost effective”, according to Mark Day, Chairman of Credential Partners, a leading provider of customer retention and pipeline management software. Mark, who has spent more than 30 years in the technology sector, has come on board to help Biz Appoints take its service offering to the next level. He is tasked with creating a unique proposition for the business which is an all-encompassing “one stop shop” for the recruitment industry. The recruitment industry is complex and the barriers to sales are high. Through Biz Appoints, companies can, for example, access the entire pipeline of candidates for their vacancies, fill any job description, manage staff jobs and offer up-to-the-minute data on their most active clients. The Biz Appoints pipeline management system is an integrated platform that also acts as a job board. Mark says: “A recruiter has a big job to do in the first place, so they want to know that the pool of candidates for their job is full of active and relevant candidates, who have the correct qualifications and suitable experience for the job. “Our solution allows them to do that with one central location and no human effort involved.” He adds: “Our vision is to become an all-encompassing platform for the recruitment industry.” Biz Appoints is still a relatively new business, but it has already achieved a good customer base. “This is a hugely ambitious project for a start-up,” says Mark. “Our business model is to only charge for the value we deliver, which I think is a unique model in the recruitment business. “At the same time we know that the market is extremely competitive and we will need to evolve our services, so we are always innovating.◆ 82157476af
